++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Blustery and wet night, with slow-moving showers bringing potential thunder.

This Evening and Tonight:
Heavy localised showers fading with some evening sunny spells. These showers bring a risk of thunder. Clearer skies at night bringing a drier spell into Saturday morning, before a band of rain arrives from the west. Breezy at times. Minimum temperature 9 deg C (48 deg F).

Saturday:
A wet start as bands of rain move eastwards, bringing heavy downpours, especially to the north of the region. Rain clearing to sunshine and heavy showers in the afternoon. Maximum temperature 21 deg C (70 deg F).

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
Localised heavy showers and longer sunny spells on Sunday. Getting more settled as sunny spells becoming longer and less showery into Monday and Tuesday. Winds gradually ease into next week.
